A very interesting item of Nautical History, 2 theories as to its origins

Version 1

A vessel called the Northumberland was built in 1871 and records show it sailed to Melbourne in 1874, and was wrecked in Napier in 1877

Version 2

The painting on the rolling pin is very crude but appears to show a ship with similar lines, e.g. bow and stern, to those on the transfer prints in the attached picture, a ship much earlier than the "Northumberland" which was wrecked at Napier in 1874.

Suggesting that the rolling pin depicts the 74 gun Royal Navy ship and dates from circa 1830-1850
